VICIOUS GALE ENDS ON HAPPY NOTE

Every person in the area must have felt a leap of joy with the news that the two New Bedford fishing vessels, which were missing and feared lost, were finally reported safe with all hands. The Edwards family of Cannon Street, Mattapoisett have had a most anxious few days since George J. Edwards was skipper of one missing dragger, "Deep Waters", and his father, John Edwards of New Bedford, was skipper of the missing "Elizabeth N". We believe that every person on this coast was thinking of the two boats. It's wonderful news that they are safe.

That more and more are living because of the marvelous discoveries made possible with the money allocated to research activities of the Heart Association is a known fact. Thanks to the generosity of those who annually contributed to this worthy cause, we now have the mechanical heart, the invention which today keeps stroke victims alive, as well as the therapy and late indispensable devices. Much credit is also given the educational programs which emphasize the techniques which are prolonging life, as well as the dedication of those scientists and medical men and women, who are devoting their lives in the laboratories so that heart patients may live.

Mrs. Joseph Lipsitt, chairman of the Heart Fund campaign committee in Marion for almost a decade, is profuse in her thanks to that devoted group of workers who sacrificed many hours of their time in the effort of gathering in the dollars so that the number one killer may be obliterated. Without their assistance, she says, we would not have such a splendid showing. The committee of volunteers included the following: Miss Ann Lindsey, Mmes. Albert Serpa, James Arne, Jr., Burnham Goddard, Elderic Barry, Graham Campbell, Eldon Hambly, J. Newton Barrows, George Olifierko, Edward Lopes, Anna Texeira, Phyllis Washburn, Alan Ladner, Albert Pierce, Arego Grassi,

Also present were Pomona Master, Paul Ouellette; Robert Ouellette, master of Rochester Grange; Edna Day, a member of the State Home and Community Service Committee; and Manuel Roderick, master of Fairhaven Grange. All spoke briefly.

Harlene Fearing reported on Bird and Conservation, urging the Juniors not to forget the birds as the weather is still cold. Joseph Alves read a poem about the robins.

Kim McCartin was voted into membership. The degree was conferred on Kim McCartin, Ricky Burbank and Michael Mulvihill. The honorary degree was given Mr. and Mrs. Roderick of Fairhaven Grange and Mrs. Velma Vinal of Nemasket Grange.

Mrs. Oliveria of Acushnet received the lecturer's prize. Deputy Smith complimented the worthy master, Mark Harris, and his officers, expressing her pleasure in witnessing a fine degree and excellent ritual work.

There was a fine display of projects made by the Juniors - pillows, candlesticks, posters and utility boards. Deputy Smith will borrow several of these to display August 26th when the State Grange will celebrate Centennial Day in Plymouth.

All honored guests congratulated the Juniors on their work and degree.

Diary of Anne Frank

ANNE FRANK WELL DONE

An outstanding presentation of the "Diary of Anne Frank" was staged by the Dramatics Club of Old Rochester Regional High School in the Gilbert D. Bristol, Jr. auditorium. The play was presented both Friday and Saturday evenings and was warmly received by the audience on each occasion.

The Diary of Anne Frank was adapted for the stage from the best seller book of Anne Frank's diary written by her while her and family and another hid from the Germans during World War II in an attic over her father's office.

The entire scene of the play takes place in this attic and the stage setting and lighting gave a realistic picture of how the Frank and Van Daan families lived for more than 2 years.

Their only contact with the outside world was with Mr. Frank's loyal office workers, Miep, and Mr. Kraeler, who daily brought them supplies and news.

Although the play depicts the lives of the Franks and Van Daans, how they managed to live together for such a long time in such cramped quarters -- their quarrels, their hunger, their Hannukah celebration, their joy when they hear of D-Day - the play really is centered around Anne, the boisterous teen-age daughter of the Franks. A happy girl with many friends until her seclusion, life cooped up in an attic is too much for her and like most teen-agers she rebels.

Every member of this cast succeeded in creating a solid character. In a capsule world and under great strain for a lengthy period, these characters change for the better and the worse according to the law of human nature. The change took place on the stage. It was fascinating to watch Sue Maxwell in the Anne Frank role, as she stepped from childhood into young womanhood. She was vital, a soaring personality trapped at the very bud. The two-year growth and development was portrayed visibly. It was beautifully done. Douglas, as Anne's father, Mr. Frank, handles his part with equal skill. This role demanded the strong figure of the leader. Mr. Frank literally held the diverse group together with the strength of his own character. Douglas dominated the scene, and yet, managed to depict a sensitive man who is keenly aware of the needs both intellectually and emotionally of his two daughters and the teen-age boy, Peter Van Daan, played by Charles Richmond. Charles, also, had to develop the introverted teen-age boy into a two-year pattern of change. The transference of affection from a pet cat to the teen-

Stokes and David Boyce, as the Van Daans, provided a good portrait of the fragile veneer of civilization wearing and cracking under the strain of constant fear and adversity. David Sullivan was excellent as the abrasive element in the drama in the person of the impatient Mr. Dussel. Michael Richmond, as Mrs. Frank, and Nancy Prescott, as Margot Frank, Anne's sister, completed the talented cast and performed ably.

This play was so very interesting because it showed the world on such a small scale, that the problems of its people become larger than life. Because this world is on the brink of disaster, and its people struggle for a goal seemingly never ending, the pressure of the cramped world rises by the moment. In this pressure cooker, a wonderful personality buds and grows reaching for the sky denied her, and she has impact on every person in her tiny world. Twenty years later, Anne Frank's personality has such force that young actresses, born years after she died, can portray her sensitive world with an impact that packs a mighty wallop. The talented group of people in this production were working with a strong vehicle, however such was their interpretation, that we believe that this has been the best acted and staged production ever given at Old Rochester.

A fine job of making the scenery was done by the students in the Art and Industrial Departments at Old Rochester. It was an excellent job which received spontaneous applause by the audience.

The play was directed by Robert A. Johnson and Jacquiline H. Gervais of the English Department. Others assisting in the production were Bradley Sell, lights; Ann Dibble, make-up; Stephanie Stokes, properties; David Boyce, publicity; Nancy Prescott, programs; Sally Gerrish, tickets; James Nightlinger, set design; Gary Pandolfi and Neil Atchison, sound; Janet Phillips, stage manager; Sally Gerrish and Karen Martin, prompters; Sue Davis, Rose Hutchins, Liza Luchini, Diane MacKenzie, Kathy Neilsen, Becky Pina, Claudette Ouellette and Beth Roylance, usherettes.

The play was presented by special arrangement with Dramatists Play Service, Inc.

Mattapoisett Woman's Club

ATTENDED ART MUSEUM

A feast of "Art, Music, Flowers", not to mention food, was enjoyed recently by the viewers and diners, as well as listeners, at the Gardner Museum, Boston. "The Top of the Hub" and the "Copenhagen Room" of the Sheraton Plaza offered scenic attractions as well as varied menus to the forty-five enthusiastic visitors from the Mattapoisett Woman's Club and their guests.

Fair weather favored the tour, successful on all accounts. Most enjoyed the paintings of Rembrandt, Giotto, Botticelli and American artists, Sargent, Whistler, etc., others the lavish antique Italian furnishings and decor, many were delighted by the concert by Mezzo Soprano, Jan Curtis, and pianist, Myron Press, in a selection of varied numbers, and all gazed spellbound at the flower-jewelled courtyard. Festoons of orange nasturtiums against grey stone linked the balconies, while purple and white cinerarias in huge pots flanked open sides and pebbled walks, an urn from Greece and a statue from Florence to serve for contrast.

The most courteous of custodians and guides, and informed personnel at the "Palace" store increased everyone's pleasure. Leaders of the tour, which was was under the sponsorship of the Fine Arts and Music Groups, joined by the American Home and Garden Group, were Miss Lydia LeBaron Walker, Fine Arts chairman; Mrs. Charles A. Adams, music co-chairman; Mrs. Victor J. Twiraga, American Home and Garden chairman. In charge of reservations and to be credited with much of the tour's success was Mrs. Robert E. Crabbe. Others ably assisting included Mrs. Benjamin Brintnall, hospitality; Mrs. Clarence J. Fountain, posters; and Mrs. Luen M. Johnson, advisory.

The Almeida bus provided unsurpassed and gracious service, the driver most cooperative. The tour concludes the activities of the Fine Arts Group for this year.

SPECIAL TO PRESTO READERS

We are pleased to announce that the Presto has purchased a collection of original glass plates made by the foremost photographer of the whaling era, Mr. Albert Cook Church. This Fairhaven man recorded an era of historic interest with the skill and composition of a fine artist. In the weeks to come, we will begin to reproduce this set of photographs with the best clarity and contrast that can be printed. We want to give our readers a collection of reproductions that are the finest ever made from these photos. This series will be worth saving.

We will make every effort to make the reproductions suitable for framing. Since we started 14 years ago, we have been able to reproduce many old photos of this area that might otherwise have been neglected or lost entirely. Never before, however, have we felt that we had more important historic material to preserve than with collection of glass plates by a master photographer of whaling ships and men. It is with great pride that we start to bring you a set of Presto covers that may well become valuable collectors' items themselves. The Presto is printed on fine paper to give it the quality of a magazine. This fact will enable us to furnish you with prints that few, if any, other newspapers in the country could equal.

Because of the importance of these pictures and the expected demand, we will print extra copies, available from the Presto office. However, this extra run will be limited. To be sure of extra copies, subscriptions may be made.

BIG SURPRISE

Big surprise and great news! "Bill, the Balloon Man", is going to be at the Loft School Fair. You will remember that he was the subject of a feature article in the Southeasterner on April 9th. He's the man who twists balloons into fantastic figures and shapes for children all over the United States. His reward is simply the smiles he brings to delighted children everywhere.

The time is almost here. May 6th, - the day of the Loft School Circus. A tattoo booth and fortune teller have just recently been added to the festivities. The puppies have opened their eyes. Plants and nice used toys are arriving in good supply. The food promises to be yummy! Don't forget - 11 'til 2, behind the Marion Town Hall THIS Saturday.

A children's costume parade will be held at 10:30. Any interested children are asked to be at St. Gabriel's Sunday School building before that time if they wish to parade up to the field. Brothers and sisters, as well as small friends, are asked to join the children of the Loft as they follow the police escort from the church to the Town Hall. Mrs. Thelma Ladner and Mrs. Meredith Hardina will be in charge.

This fair, remember, will be held rain or shine, thanks to a kind agreement with the Selectmen that the Town House auditorium may be used in case of rain. Pray for the sun, but come anyway - it may have forgotten how to shine! Almost all the booths, games, food and grabs can be done indoors.

Bring everyone - there should be something for every child. Come help make it a happy day for all concerned.

It's like a woman overdue with child.
The eager human soul
Must wait it out
For Nature has control.
Frustrated and impatient
Man puts boat in water
(After all, the crocuses are up!)
But the north winds blow
And boats are harbor-bound
Because the Spring is slow.
There must be reason
For this frustrous season.
When the Spring is slow
Man's soul
Like it or not
Is forced to grow!"

OH!
or
ON THE WAY TO WAREHAM

"Oh lonely white bird
On the dark marsh
So white
And so lone against
The bleak marsh.
You are so still.
Poor bird!
Are you dead
There along
On the marsh?
Oh!
Now I can see
You're a
Plastic bleach bottle."
